Introduction

The Programme for Government commits to progressing Ireland's first National Philanthropy Policy. The purpose of the policy is to deepen understanding and knowledge, creating an enabling environment and accelerate engagement with philanthropy in Ireland for social good. The policy contains 21 actions, divided between the following strands: communications and awareness raising; data and research; stimulating and incentivising philanthropy; government and sectoral partnership; and capacity building.

To advance this commitment, the Department of Rural and Community Development is launching a call for place-based pilot projects which will provide funding for a small number of projects that will test how collaboration between philanthropy, the Government and communities can deliver community led initiatives to address local challenges. Initial funding of €600,000 over three years is available under this call.

Programme Objectives

The aim of this call for place-based pilot projects is to support projects that:

- Address identified local needs or challenges – social, economic or environmental.
- Promote understanding and collaboration between philanthropy and government (both national and local government).
- Test innovative, co-funding approaches to addressing key social issues.

The main objectives of the programme are to:

- Bring together resources in a collaborative way to benefit the community in a defined geographical location.
- Promote partnership and collaboration between communities, philanthropists, local government and local organisations.

- Trial a co-funding approach to gain insights to inform future initiatives.

Support Available
